Sabrina's practice focuses on representing corporate clients in complex multiparty and multidistrict antitrust cases alleging price-fixing, market allocation, and other anticompetitive conduct in both U.S. and foreign markets. She has represented clients in a variety of industries including financial services, automotive, food and beverage, agriculture, and consumer products. She has additional experience litigating insurance coverage and other commercial disputes.

Sabrina has played a significant role in representing plaintiffs in all stages of the litigation life cycle in some of the country's largest opt out antitrust cases. She has briefed dozens of complex and novel jurisdictional, discovery, foreign data privacy, and substantive antitrust issues before federal district and appellate courts, has navigated discovery of numerous foreign defendants under the Hague Evidence Convention, and has managed multiple large scale ESI document productions and reviews.

Sabrina is also the Co-Chair of Zelle's Diversity, Equity and Inclusion Steering Committee, and in that capacity has taken a firm-wide leadership role in expanding the firm's long-standing commitment to cultivating and nurturing an inclusive and equitable workplace.
